20.00 - 20.30 VAC Cross-Site Request Forgery
Niels Teusink

CSRF is an attack which forces an end user to execute unwanted actions on a web application in which he/she is currently authenticated. With a little help of social engineering (like sending a link via email/chat), an attacker may force the users of a web application to execute actions of the attacker’s choosing. A successful CSRF exploit can compromise end user data and operation in case of normal user. If the targeted end user is the administrator account, this can compromise the entire web application.

Niels Teusink holds a bachelor degree in Computer Science and has been experimenting with IT security for over a decade. He has worked for Fox-IT since 2005; first as a software engineer and since 2007 as a penetration tester. He has since performed dozens of penetration tests for all sorts of companies, including governments, banks and nuclear installations.

20.30 - 21.15 Open session / discussion about subjects brought forward by the attendees
Martin Knobloch/Ferdinand Vroom/Peter Gouwentak

21.15 - 21:30 Discussion, questions and social networking
