OPPORTUNITIES

Here are the key challenges that SWorks will address for OWASP via a phased approach:

• Identify and prioritize OWASP's target audience(s), developing a marketing strategy that is aligned with the primary business objectives of the organization's stakeholders.

• Develop three engaging and member-centric marketing tools (e-brochure, new member welcome package and e-newsletter template), tailoring them to drive member engagement, organizational awareness and attendance to the annual OWASP conference.

• Grow the organization’s fan base and engagements on Facebook with a focus on promoting the annual event.

• Analyze the media wiki that's in use currently, offering content management strategies that are tailored to meet the informational needs of OWASP's key audiences.

• Position OWASP as a leader in the information security space, building brand awareness and recognition via a targeted campaign.
A successful marketing strategy and implementation plan begins with strong project management throughout all phases of the process. SWorks is seasoned in this area, guaranteeing thoughtful communication as your solution begins to take shape. We follow the same phase-by-phase approach that many high-end agencies use. However, our boutique size allows us to be client-centered, nimble, attentive and responsive.

Project Communication: There are a number of communication touch points and tools we use throughout the lifecycle of your project.

Project Management E-Tool: By using a best-in-class online project management e-tool, we will be able to share information and responsibilities across tasks, milestones and assets.

Weekly Project Meetings: SWorks will schedule project meetings with the OWASP team and will determine the optimal cadence for those meetings (weekly is standard). OWASP will receive team e-mails that not only include a status of the week's events, but they also include important decisions, notes or outstanding items as the project progresses.
